

The George M. Miller House AKA The College President's Home

Written by Jose Cavazos

The name of this House is the George M. Miller House. The George M. Miller House was built in 1914. It is also known as The College President's Home.

The address of the George M. Miller House is 503 Tamiami Trail U.S. Highway 41 South Ruskin, Florida 33570.

The George M. Miller House was built for the president of the only college ever located in Ruskin. The college is not here anymore. Most of the college buildings burned down but not this house. We are lucky! The George M. Miller house is now being maintained by the dedicated efforts of The Ruskin Woman's Club. The George M. Miller House is very tall, protective, and strong. It actually has three stories! The George M. Miller House has trees surrounding it, nice fencing, and parking places for cars around it.

The George M. Miller House is wonderfully cared for by The Ruskin Woman's Club. The house is so important because of it being the house of the president of the first college to be located in Ruskin. The George M. Miller house is gray, has three stories, and is made out of cement and wood.
